

Since I registered for "Do Not Call" my family and I can sit down and have an enjoyable dinner together without being harrassed by telemarketers.

In my opinion, I find that telemarketers do not solicit anything over the phone that I would be interested in purchasing anyway and if I was interested in a service I would go out and buy it myself. I find it very distressful that you feel that telemarketers have more rights than we do. They are actually coming into our homes and disrupting our family hour for their financial benefit over the privacy of our families.
